PPCA stands for Phonographic Performance Company of Australia.

The PPCA is a non-profit organisation established by Australian Record Companies to issue licences for the broadcasting and public performance of copyrighted sound recordings. (as opposed to APRA who issue licences on behalf of the original performers and composers)

As square dance music producers do not participate in this licensing arrangement, users of square dance music are not required to obtain a PPCA licence.

This arrangements has been confirmed in discussions with representatives of PPCA.
